IRAN ATTACK : EMERGENCY RESPONSE

Latet on the frontline as a social first responder

SITUATIONAL OVERVIEW

Since the early hours of Saturday, February 28th, 2026, Israel has been under an active state of emergency following the launch of direct Iranian attacks on Israeli territory. Iran has fired waves of missiles and drones, targeting civilian population centers all over the country.

With sirens sounding repeatedly throughout the entire day and continuing through the night, millions of civilians are forced to seek shelter for prolonged periods. National mobility has been severely restricted, schools and workplaces have been closed, and daily life has been abruptly brought to a halt.

Initial assessments indicate population displacement, damage to residential buildings, and growing difficulties in accessing food, essential supplies, and basic services, particularly for displaced families, elderly, and Holocaust survivors with limited mobility, as well as the countless individuals seeking shelter.

THE NEED

Millions of Israelis, including the elderly and families, were forced to sleep overnight in reinforced residential safe rooms within their homes, in public shelters, or in improvised shelters such as parking garages and light rail stations, many of which lacked adequate food, water, bedding, or basic sanitation.

As of Sunday morning, approximately 190 displaced families have been temporarily accommodated in 5 locations across several localities, including Tel Aviv, Haifa, Petah Tikva, Ramat Gan, and Bnei Brak.

THE RESPONSE

As the first social responder in times of crisis, Latet works in close coordination with local authorities and the IDF Home Front Command. Its emergency response operations include:

- Direct distribution of immediate relief kits for displaced families, specifically adapted to their needs.
- Provision of emergency shelter kits.
- Outreach to all elderly and Holocaust survivors aid recipients to ensure needs are continuously addressed.
